Dear FCC:

I am a senior citizen who subscribes to wireless services only for emergency situations when I am in my car. I adamantly oppose the addition of a Universal Service Charge for this service. In fact, the Universal Service Charge is a major percentage of my wired home phone bill and you should be working to reduce or eliminate this charge. Why can't the people living in rural areas sign up for wireless services so that the Universal Service Charge can be done away with?
